

Tea-staining may occur if stainless steel is not kept clean. But this can be eliminated quite easily using either a mild soap or stainless steel cleaning agent. (sold in most hardware stores) If you clean these spots early enough, it should not turn to rust, but if left uncleaned, it could eventually become worse. It is best to keep your stainless steel clean by wiping once a week.